H.S.H.
Prince Albert II
of Monaco

The celebration of the International Day of Sport for Development and Peace was initiated by Peace and Sport, an international organization based in Monaco. Since its launch in 2013 by the United Nations and the International Olympic Committee, this day has been marked by several hundred initiatives around the world to promote a message of peace.

Within this context, the “#WhiteCard” operation which started in the Principality has positioned the white cardboard as the new international symbol of peace on April 6. I am proud of this initiative, representing the values promoted by my country through its involvement in the sport movement’s goal to promote peace.

April 6 is a unique opportunity to support and join the peace-through-sport movement. I am convinced that sport has a strong capacity of action to educate and assist young people who are often looking for benchmarks in life.

I would like to express my gratitude to all individuals and the organizations who have participated in the #WhiteCard campaign for their commitment to a more peaceful world.

Joël Bouzou,
President et Founder
Peace and Sport

To celebrate the 5th International Day of Sport for Development and Peace on April 6th, Peace and Sport encouraged the international community to engage in activities to promote the positive values of sport. This record-breaking mobilization resulted in 90 million people reached on social media by the symbolic 2018 #WhiteCard campaign.

This year #WhiteCard went more viral than ever. Launched from Colombia by H.S.H. Prince Albert II of Monaco, H.E. Mr. Juan Manuel Santos, President of the Republic of Colombia and 2016 Nobel Peace Prize laureate, H.E. Mrs. Maria Angela Holguin, Colombian Minister of Foreign Affairs and Didier Drogba, Champion for Peace, the 2018 digital campaign rallied heads of states, ministers, sports organizations, associations and athletes worldwide. The diversity of stakeholders and their commitment around the entire world illustrated the magnitude of the #WhiteCard as a symbol of the peace-through-sport movement.

In addition, 850 projects in 138 countries spanning all 5 continents led by international sports federations, sports clubs, institutions, schools and associations, athletes, Champions for Peace and civil society were organized to celebrate April 6 and were registered on the April6.org platform. Thank you to everyone who played a part in this fruitful 2018 mobilization.

L'Organisation pour la Paix par le Sport, is an international, neutral and independent organization based in Monaco which promotes peace using the power of sport. Founded in 2007 by Modern Pentathlon Olympic Medallist and World Champion Joël Bouzou, Peace and Sport is under the High Patronage of H.S.H. Prince Albert II of Monaco.

The organization uses the structured practice of sport as a tool to build sustainable peace by educating young generations about positive values, fostering social stability and cohesion, and promoting dialogue among communities.

In 2014 Peace and Sport launched the #WhiteCard digital campaign and the www.april6.org platform in order to create a global movement for the International Day of Sport for Development and Peace and highlight the positive power of sport. Since then, both initiatives have met great success. Over the last four years, the platform has a final count of 2,110 registered projects from 180 different countries.

The celebration of this symbolic day and the growth of the sport-for-development-and-peace movement legitimize and demonstrate that sport is formidable tool to tackle social issues, as well as being a cost-effective mechanism to create more cohesive societies.

THE ORIGIN OF APRIL6

On 23 August 2013 the UN General Assembly with the support of the International Olympic Committee declared April 6th as the International Day of Sport for Development and Peace (IDSDP) at the United Nations Headquarters in New York. This decision represented a historic step in recognizing the transformative power of sport and its boundless potential to advance positive social change.

April6.org is an online platform that encourages, promotes and catalogues symbolic worldwide events and sport-based initiatives carried out by a variety of different stakeholders to celebrate the International Day of Sport for Development and Peace.

The #WhiteCard is a worldwide digital campaign created by Peace and Sport that promotes the positive and constructive values of sport. Every year the #WhiteCard campaign reaches millions of people through social media. Holding up a #WhiteCard, just like a referee, has been recognized as the symbol of the peace-through-sport movement and it is an action that symbolizes the positive power of sport. In contrast with the red card, which signifies the most serious offense in sport, the #WhiteCard is a gesture of inclusion, equity and peace.

Sport as a source of inspiration in a refugee camp

Sport is a great tool which can help and assist refugees to overcome settlement challenges. With that in mind, this year Peace and Sport celebrated the “Live Together on April6” in the Za’atari Refugee Camp with the support of UNHCR and Champions for Peace Aya Medany and Christian Karembeu. The Jordan National Olympic Committee, the International Relief & Development Organization joined the celebration which benefited 400 children, plus three international federations: the International Table Tennis Federation, World Association of Kickboxing Organizations and International Teqball Federation.

Christian Karembeu encouraged children to play Teqball whilst Aya Medany led a ‘Sport Simple’ fencing workshop for 15 young Syrians, and kickboxing champion Tomaz Barada introduced a dozen girls to kickboxing. Furthermore, the International Table Tennis Federation organized several table tennis workshops with the help of Ryu Seung Min, the 2004 Olympic Games Men’s Singles gold medallist.

50 refugee children participated in a 5-km #WhiteCard rally, which consisted of passing a #WhiteCard torch from hand to hand throughout the camp.
